THE JUSTIN FOUNDATION FIGHTS ADDICTION

The Justin Foundation of Danville, CA has awarded educational scholarships for the 2006-2007 academic year to Priscilla James, who is attending San Bernardino College, and Sherice Norris, who is attending Cal State Dominguez Hills College. Both women plan to become Certified Alcohol and Drug Counselors.

The colleges have received five-hundred dollars to apply toward tuition and/or books for women's classes. Scholarships may be renewed on a semester-by-semester basis until AOD programs are completed if recipients meet established criteria.

Ms. Smith of Danville stated that, in starting The Justin Foundation, she wanted to honor her son Justin's commitment to recovery from drug addiction by helping as many individuals as possible who are affected by this illness. She believes "one well-educated counselor can help hundreds of people in need".

The Justin Foundation educational scholarship demonstrates Ms. Smith's commitment to seeing an increased number of qualified Alcohol and Drug Counselors in the field to work with patients. Scholarship applications for the 2007-08 academic year will be available next summer for download at www.thejustinfoundation.org.
